The Reading Strike.

PHILADELPHIA, January 3.—The great railroad strike is still on and it is clear that the determination of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad company has worked a complete demoralization of the coal trade. At the opening of business this morning the offices of the company at Philadelphia, Reading, Pottsville, Shamokin and all other points were deserted. Not a wheel was turned in the mines and not a ton of coal was mined. The railroad is working smoothly and no difficulty is experienced in getting coal and coke to the Philadelphia & Reading division are now at work at Shenandoah and Mahanoy City. Miners are out at Mahanoy Plane, Kehley Run, Hickory Ridge, Big Mine Run and Locust Gap collieries where the men refuse to accept the reduction. The Lehigh Valley collieries agree to pay the old wages until the strike is settled. The collieries now still in Shamokin will be closed down tomorrow. Only a few Knights of Labor are at work at Port Carbon. Delegates from the Knights of Labor assemblies at Pottsville met last night and decided to support the strike and issued a manifesto to that effect. There is no change in the Reading railroad coal region. Only a few collieries are working. The Reading company has agreed to pay the 8 per cent advance on the basis pending settlement of the strike. The Lehigh Valley company and work will be resumed tomorrow.

HARRISBURG, Pa., January 3.—A joint session of the Miners Amalgamated Association and Knights of Labor met in this city today and promulgated a manifesto in relation to the strike issued by President Corbin. The manifesto declares the determination of the general assembly to stand by the order to strike and prevails that there will be no mines in operation to mourrow as there are today. A number of collieries did put to work at Port Carbon, where more than two thousand men are now at work in the mines.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., January 3.—Advices received today from a number of points in the coal region show that the strike order is working. The following collieries at Shenandoah and all others idle and that place are also. The railroad is working smoothly and little difficulty is experienced in getting coal and coke. At the Locust Gap division are now at work and will be at Shenandoah. Miners are out at Mahanoy Plane, Kehley Run, Hickory Ridge, Big Mine Run and Locust Gap collieries where the men refuse to accept the reduction. The Lehigh Valley collieries agree to pay the old wages until the strike is settled. The collieries now still in Shamokin will be closed down tomorrow. H. W. STEELE,
Manager of the GAZETTE.

The periodical war excitement in Europe seems to have collapsed. That important movements of Russian and Austrian troops it is now ascertained were [illegible] exaggerated and only served the purpose of disturbing [illegible] for a brief period.

The New Year's edition of the Leadville Herald-Democrat is a credit to that journal and the city in which it is published. The feat of issuing a paper of fifty two pages is one that is seldom accomplished and is quite a tribute to the enterprise and energy of the paper's management.

The religious press of London complain in the strongest terms of the marked attention which some of the English nobility are paying to those representatives of American pugilism, Mr. Sullivan and Mr Kilrain. These exponents of physical culture are still the pets' favorites of the London sporting fraternity, and with the aid of Mr. Buffalo Bill have have done much [illegible] to the depleting the volume of English currency.

It is stated on good authority that General Bragg of W[illegible] in his [illegible] Texas and the Mexican mission made [illegible] by [illegible] of the Commander-in-chief Judge [illegible] ming of Louisiana. General Bragg was a [illegible] to for re[illegible] to [illegible] but was defeated. He has always been a warm friend of the administration and his [illegible] by Mr. Cleveland in the [illegible] of the [illegible] of 1884 [illegible] practically before the [illegible] of the [illegible] which will [illegible] during the campaign.

One of the best effects of the [illegible] in 1879 is shown in the [illegible] matters, and gives no time to [illegible] the positive merits of high license or prohibition. This is particularly true with regard to May [illegible] when annual elections are held. The policy that prevails one year is likely to be different the next, and all that has been achieved is lost. The city of Worcester is a [illegible] example of this change in policy. In 1838 prohibition carried the city by 56 majority and during the year an effort was made to stop the sale of liquor. In 1886 however prohibition was defeated by [illegible] majority, and [illegible] filled in what was termed the [illegible] arrival of liquor. In that year [illegible] arrests were made for drunkenness against 952 under prohibition. Last [illegible] prohibition was almost successful again, the majority against it being [illegible] Nail. Very little can be gained by [illegible] such changing methods. What is needed is a fair and impartial trial of both high license and prohibition. Atlanta has had [illegible] for high license for the two years. If the prohibitionists will give their aid in showing how effective that policy can be made, they will greatly help the advancement of the temperance cause.

It is becoming quite apparent that the Democratic majority in congress will be determined to admit Utah as a state. If Dakota is admitted Senator Call of Florida is making an earnest effort to commit the party on this question. He urges the claims of Utah on the ground that a territorial convention, composed mostly of Mormons, recently met, denounced polygamy as a crime, and applied for admission as a state. This was a very shrewd move on the part of the Mormons. They knew that Utah could never become a state unless some pretense was made that polygamy would be abolished. If the pretense was not made the moral sense of the entire country would be greatly outraged. Having denounced polygamy the Mormons have assumed an air of great indignation that their sincerity should be doubted. The insincerity of the Mormons is fully shown by the following taken from their leading organ, the Salt Lake City Herald of a recent issue.

It is a fact that plural marriage offends the sensibilities of the age; but who can say whether it is its moral or its tremendous [illegible] Were [illegible] resolute gentile can state that Mormon marriage has injuriously affected either private or public morals, or, in and of itself, the welfare of the community?

The Mormons are a patriotic people. They have been opposed to a law of [illegible], but that does not prove a lack of patriotism. Time [illegible] that the Dred Scott decision was wrong and as opponents of bigamy [illegible] time, in the case of the Mormons, may do much to establish the Mormon claim that it is the law that is at fault and not themselves.

In the face of this declaration it is folly to suppose that a Mormon state would punish that which its citizens support. It is difficult to reconcile how polygamist Mormons could be punished by a state government composed of Mormons. If Utah is admitted while the non Mormon population are in the majority crime would flourish there unchecked. Polygamy would be illegal but it would not be punishable. The moral element of the democratic party will not be pleased at this attempt to commit the party on this question, for the sake of getting three electoral votes, two senators and a representative in congress. It would be a fatal blunder for the party to adopt the position taken by senator Call though from recent events it would appear that its capacity for blundering has not yet been exhausted.

Madrid, December 18, 1887.

When you cross the Pyrenees and reach Madrid in eighteen hours, the first thing that strikes you in the streets of the Castilian capital, is the disappearance of that national costume which you read so much about only a few years ago in books of travel or see in it would be a mistake however, to think that national fashions have been completely swept away by the invasion of French fashions which are fascinating slowly into the upper circles of society.

The Aristocratic Spanish ladies and even those of the middle classes do not seem to relish the [illegible] notions of their French neighbors and always successful heroines they have no use for [illegible] which they do not seem to wear with the ease and elegance of a Parisian Dame, again with the Madrilenian there is a tendency to exaggeration in color, shape, and form which makes a perfect French dressmaker.

Spanish [illegible] are [illegible] French fashions. In the ball room, at the theatre at dinner parties or when driving in the park they strive to show off their purchases made in summer tours to France and England. But there are many occasions even in the [illegible] class wealthier classes when they revert to their own national fashions. In this very capital during holy week, for instance, all the fair sex, from the wives of grandees down to the humblest servant girl attire themselves in black and adorn their heads with the national mantilla. Indeed this costume is so becoming to the features and graceful carriage of Spanish women that a great French painter, who happened to be in Madrid on Good Friday, remarked to me that he had no need to go to the museum or to "El Pardo" to see the inimitable pictures of Goya, and other Spanish painters of national fashions at the end of the last century.

The mantillas worn during holy week are often of valuable lace, and are heirlooms coming down from mother to daughter. They are of two sorts one the large black lace veil thrown over a high comb, and draped gracefully over the shoulders, the other, a black velvet [illegible] with rich lace or scarlet satin, so displayed in folds over the figure as to make a lovely contrast of colors. This mantilla is not worn over a comb, but is fastened low down on the back of the head, almost on the neck, and the hair generally dressed, save for some [illegible] lady [illegible] placed on the left [illegible] This mantilla is generally [illegible] with fringe velvet [illegible] and [illegible] with [illegible] called [illegible] in Spanish. Of course all on the [illegible] is indispensable, and is twined round the left wrist in graceful. Nothing can be prettier than a young Madrilena kneeling on the floor of some Gothic church or cathedral, her [illegible] eyes cast down and half-hidden under the graceful folds of her face veil, while she tells her beads so [illegible] as to appear unconscious of the admiring gaze of some foreigner or spectator hard by.

Spanish ladies also wear the mantilla when they go to a wedding, and then it [illegible] flowers not only in the hair, but also among the folds of the lace over the bodice. At the bull fight they wear white mantillas with very high combs and scarlet flowers. This white mantilla is also worn by the ladies of the Madrid aristocracy at palace ceremonies, when they take place in the day time, and likewise at royal marriages and christenings. The delicate lace of this mantilla looks very well over the bright tints of rich court dresses, and even the ladies of the diplomatic corps are obliged to wear it, though you easily perceive that they do not arrange the mantilla on the head or drape it over the shoulders with the grace of the natives. The queen regent is one of the few foreigners who look well in a mantilla, and she often wears a simple black one when walking out in the morning with her children.

There is another sort of mantilla which is only worn when in deep mourning for a certain class of [illegible] It is called a [illegible] and is of black [illegible] placed on the head and fastened close round the neck, except in the case of widows who wear the [illegible] that it trails almost down to the ground.

The fan is, quite as much as the mantilla, peculiarly characteristic of Spanish nature. It is carried everywhere, to church, visiting and except in warm weather even when walking. In the [illegible] often used in lieu of a sunshade and gracefully held up to screen the face. At other times it is employed in connection with [illegible] Your fine Castilian or Andalusian opens and shuts a fan with a rapidity and nonchalance [illegible] that amazes a foreigner. Even the little girls strut about with fans in their hands in a most astonishingly [illegible] way imitating all the movements that their elder sisters have got down in this fan catechism. It is not generally known, but it is made use of, with a fan even as daintily [illegible] thoughts and messages of a [illegible] nature to admirers. Women of the lower classes have their fans, which cost only a cent or two, and are often [illegible] portraits of popular bull fighters and favorite Cigarera.

Spanish women take great care of their hair. The [illegible] a most [illegible] create. Very few, in fact, know how to dress their own hair and [illegible] have to have every morning [illegible] and curl up the [illegible] locks of the [illegible] and [illegible] Even the wives of [illegible] take great care of their heads and this [illegible] of [illegible] seldom seen in other countries. They wear flowers and [illegible] over their heads with handkerchief of bright color fastened under the chin. The [illegible] of the working classes look exceedingly [illegible] and [illegible] in their [illegible] and [illegible]

In the province of [illegible] the women in the [illegible] wear the same national costume to day that they did a hundred years ago. Those worn by the wives of rich farmers are often very [illegible] The most original of all are those worn in the province of Valencia and are styled the charra costume. This consists of a short dark woollen skirt, reaching [illegible] over a petticoat of some bright color, a black silk apron embroidered in colors, and a black bodice, over which is thrown a velvet jacket covered with shining beads, completes this picturesque attire. The [illegible] of the dress is very odd but not unbecoming. The hair is parted in the middle and brought down slightly over the forehead and then is [illegible] over the temples like two little wheels, with a gold pin stuck through them. The back hair is made into a [illegible] and tied up with a [illegible] silk [illegible]. A high comb is over all this clothing. No [illegible] of necklaces and long gold earrings complete the costume.

In the province of Toledo a woman's [illegible] may be told at sight as she [illegible] the top on [illegible] the shortest [illegible] show the others as she walks. They are of many colors.

In the Basque provinces, women wear their hair [illegible] plaits. The married [illegible] distinguished from the unmarried by a white handkerchief on the head, [illegible] the latter [illegible] of the head.

A foreigner can get a very good idea of the different national costumes by looking at the nurses in Retiro. Mothers like pride in dressing up their [illegible] in the costumes of the provinces. If a woman has a [illegible] from San Sebastian or Bilbao, she has her dress her hair in long plaits under a quaint little cap fastened on the top of the head with large gold pins. The dress is very simple, consisting of a colored skirt, a large white apron with a [illegible] and [illegible] bodice.

The Asturian nurse has quite a [illegible] costume. While the ladies will spend a fortune dressing them up. Little King Alfonso XIII has one of these nurses from the mountains near Santander, and her costume has always been a conspicuous feature at court ceremonies. She wore it when the king was christened, and again when he was presented to the cortes. It consists of a rich velvet skirt with two broad bands of gold round it, a blue velvet apron also trimmed with gold, a bodice of black velvet fastened with lovely silver buttons, which opens on an [illegible] chemisette of fine lawn with [illegible] round her neck and [illegible] six rows of coral beads and four [illegible] rings of the same. A rich silk handkerchief is fastened over her dark hair, which she arranges Madonna fashion in front.

At weddings in Spain, except in the aristocratic circles, the bride is [illegible] in black and wears a mantilla. One of the prettiest sights in this country is a wedding of the lower [illegible] The bride does not wear white cashmere and [illegible] but [illegible] attractive in her [illegible] A dress usually [illegible] her lace mantilla and her embroidered mantilla shawl. In poor families those shawls are heirlooms, and indeed many girls would sooner part with all their trinkets than with this gaudy piece of apparel. The bridegroom also looks very fine in his new black suit and his cloak, or [illegible] thrown about him.

Although you can still see the picturesque costumes which I have just described, it must be admitted, with regret, that these original national fashions are slowly disappearing, and the day will eventually come when Paris modes will have driven them back into the forgotten past.

Now, this power of forming exact mental pictures to a [illegible] indicates a latent capacity for a form of celebration which may—for aught that is known—adjust of being developed in [illegible] as it certainly can be developed in individuals. The artist who in the latter [illegible] of his career is able to draw from [illegible] figures and faces which he has seen a few times only, or perhaps but once, had this faculty in far less developed degree when he was a student. Where the power is possessed early in life, it may be developed to an unlimited or even dangerous degree [illegible] special conditions.

For instance, Talma cultivated so marvelous a power of forming mental [illegible] that he could actually see what his mind had imagined. His favorite subject for mental picturing was not a cheerful one, and notwithstanding the effective use to which he put it can hardly have been pleasant to him. He could at will picture a skeleton either alone or corresponding with absolute perfection in every detail to the figure and [illegible] of any person—man, woman or child—at whom he looked. Usually, of course, the power of forming an unreal picture is interfered with by the actual presence of an object unlike the creature it represents. But Talma had [illegible] in so [illegible] use as a skeleton.—Richard A. Proctor in New York Mail and Express.

THE town site of Green Mountain Falls is beautifully situated in the Ute Pass, fifteen miles west of Colorado Springs and nine miles from Manitou, on the line of the Midland Railroad, at the north end of Pike's Peak.

Two mountain streams come through the place making some of the most beautiful falls in the state. There are Fine Natural Parks, Beautiful Pine Groves and an Attractive Mesa covered with Trees affording a Fine Choice Building site.

Early in the spring the company proposes to erect a commodious hotel and other buildings and will put up tents which will be rented ready furnished. A lake will be made, a boat house built, and boats get ready for summer use. Beautiful drives, winding through shady groves, will be laid out.

We have many choice bargains of Improved and Unimproved City property in the city of Colorado Springs and Colorado City and several Fine Ranches, the latter mostly in El Paso county though there are some adjoining counties.

Not that I am looking forward to the pleasure of meeting you and the other boys, for I can't say that I do. Of course, dear boy, we are all glad to see each other after the long vacation, but I don't like the way Congress goes about it. Instead of coming together in a business way, which is the only excuse for a session, they seem to think that they must have a good time, and they spend the first month in getting over the effects of it. Then they begin to do a little work, and keep it up until the holidays, when they take a recess for a week or two, and then they come back and do a little more work, and keep it up until the Fourth of July, when they take a recess for a month or two, and then they come back and do a little more

CONNECTIONS AT PUEBLO WITH ALL EASTERN AND WESTERN TRAINS.

C. H. WARREN, G. P. A. and T. A., Denver, Colo.

Miss O'Neil is in Trinidad at the present writing.

Mr. Johnny Phillips, of Big Sandy, was in the city yesterday.

The Wasatch smelting corps are now in camp about six miles east of the city.

It is stated that plans have been drawn for the erection of a large hall near the shops of the city.

A marriage license was issued yesterday to Mr. Albert Blakeley and Miss Sarah Black, both of Manitou.

Mr. E. F. Clark, manager of the Midland cutting stations at Colorado and Leadville, was in the city yesterday.

The Matt France Hose company will realize over $300 from the sale of tickets to their ball on Monday evening.

Assessment Clerk Spalding reports that the city stated yesterday that his cash sales for 1887 exceeded those of 1886 by $50,000.

During the year 1887 Mr. John A. Himebaugh, proprietor of the Spalding house, furnished 170,250 meals and lodgings.

The project of establishing a large laundry at Fountain is now being agitated by some of the residents of that locality.

Baron Rosenkrans, who until recently resided on a ranch near Husted, has gone to Leadville where he will engage in business.

By a notice in another column it will be seen that the firm of Sisson Brothers, dealers in groceries at No. 25 North Tejon street, has been dissolved.

An unusually attended meeting of the Hook and Ladder company held last evening was held to give a grand ball on the evening of February 22d.

Mr. J. O. Davis, Colorado City's popular and champion of Colorado has been challenged by a well-to-do man at Denver to fight for a purse of $1,000.

Mr. H. T. Blake, of the Iron Springs hotel, is making a number of substantial improvements, among which is an ice house of over one hundred tons capacity.

There will be a special meeting of the Matt France Hose company tomorrow evening. A full attendance of members is desired, as work is expected to commence.

A complaint has been made to the board of county commissioners that the bridges have fallen into disrepair on some of the county roads in the vicinity of Fontanelle.

At a meeting of the Hook and Ladder company last evening, Messrs. J. C. Read and F. D. Burns were elected members of the standing committee to fill existing vacancies.

City Engineer H. I. Reed is now busily engaged in exploring La Veranc for the Green Mountain Falls company. The ground is to be platted into lots 25 x 100 twenty acres in extent.

Uncle Bailey, the county hen peacock, was made happy yesterday over the receipt of $10, it being his proportion of the reward offered for the arrest of the dynamiter who was recently apprehended in this city.

There will be no union services this evening at the First Methodist church, as each of the various churches of the city will hold their usual weekly prayer meetings. To-morrow evening the services will be resumed at the same place Rev. J. B. Gregg of the Congregational church, will conduct the meeting.

At a meeting of the common council held on Monday evening it was decided to let the contract on the new church building to Mr. A. E. Stevens his bid being the lowest. The contract will be awarded in the course of the next few days and the work of construction will be immediately begun.

Mr. L. C. Dana qualified as city attorney before City Clerk H. C. McCleary yesterday morning. Last evening he called the entire police force together and conferred with them regarding the duties to be performed. Mr. Dana will also administer the affairs of the sheriff's office until Sheriff-elect Jackson takes possession of the office next Tuesday.

The members of the fire department are quite pleased over the action of the committee on fire department of the city council in ordering the steam fire alarm gong to be placed on the electric light building. They think that the gong can be heard at night in every part of the city, while at the last alarm quite a number of firemen failed to hear the bell.

The following recently elected officers of Pikes Peak encampment No. 21, I. O. O. F., were installed last evening: W. Fowler, C. P.; H. Shenk, S. W.; E. S. Bumstead, H. P.; J. M. Sellers, scribe; L. Brite, treasurer; J. E. Shenk, J. W.; A. B. Wade, 1st W.; J. F. Pearce, 2d W.; E. L. Bowen, 3d W.; F. W. Lott, 4th W.; W. E. McLain, 1st R. of T.; D. L. Wetenkamp, 2d R. of T.

We are under obligations to the Republic for a kindly notice of the Gazette's New Year's edition. We regret that the impression should have been conveyed in the article on county newspapers that the Republic was a county newspaper, and not a city journal. We willingly correct that impression and trust that our contemporary will still continue to occupy the position in city journalism which it has filled for several years past.

In speaking of Theodora, the New York Telegram said. It is without doubt the greatest spectacular drama of the epoch. Miss Olcott herself has bounded gracefully and grandly into the front rank of American stars. Her acting to-night is instinct with the spirit of the piece. Her graceful dancing seems to wholly magnetize her audience. The death scene is terrible in its intensity, and once seen could never be forgotten. She really has accomplished a great purpose, and has surpassed all her fellow country women in boldness enterprise, managerial liberality and good taste. None never did anything else can produce "Theodora" she would be remembered and referred to as one who has achieved something wonderful in things theatrical.

The board of county commissioners was in session at the court house yesterday and nearly the entire day was spent in the examination of the bonds of the newly elected and other county officials. Assessor Perkins' bond was fixed at $5,000 his sureties were D. B. Fairley, Assessment, H. Baldwin, A. S. Hollbrook and E. W. Giddings. County surveyor H. I. Reed's bond was $1,000 and his sureties were W. Kennedy, L. A. Colburn, A. D. Lawton, Irving Hamlin and M. L. De Coursey. County Treasurer McConomy's bond of $100,000 secures the following endorsers: Irving Hamlin, B. F. Crowell, N. S. Cowen, L. R. Elliott and J. S. Hanscom. Superintendent of Schools Reeves fixed his bond at $10,000 with C. S. Brooks and Irving Hamlin as sureties. County Clerk Davis' bond of $5,000 was signed by M. A. L. Dy, John Hulbert and E. D. Nichols. Sheriff Jackson's bond of $50,000 was signed by S. A. Jackson, Matt France, Anthony Shutt, R. F. Kavanaugh, T. A. McKinnon, E. W. Giddings, jr., D. B. Darby, J. C. Bridgeford, S. J. Scudder, Enos Hall, Casamanda, A. Lessing. The bond of County Commissioner C. C. Pleak was W. E. Mack, J. C. Peabody, J. S. Evans and W. F. Pinnell and the bond of Coroner Wood was $10,000. The bond will be considered at an early session of the board.
